

The arrows indicate the way in which stones roll through if pile facing is constructed after erection of staitis is finished.
 The sleepers show the means at present taken to block these openings, which in some cases the diver reports amount to four feet, this is owing to the piles working out of line where they enter the ground when being driven on the sloping framework.