In addition to the above-mentioned expenditure, it is estimated that the Board's liabilities for comforts provided but not paid for are approximately £1,500.

Negotiations are in hand at the present moment with the Treasury for the investment at short call of further funds of the Board. It will be appreciated that at this stage it would be unwise to invest the moneys for any lengthy period.

It is extremely hard to estimate the future expenditure of the National Board, so much depends on the length of the war, the number of treops sent overseas, and, in so far as the Sick and Wounded Fund is concerned, the number of casualties that will occur. I think it is safe to say that the present Common Fund of the Board will carry all expenditure for from twelve to eighteen months, and that the Sick and Wounded Fund will last for the same period. It must be borne in mind that in addition to the Board's main duties—i.e., the provision of comforts for our fighting Forces, the care of the sick and wounded, and relief of distress, for which it is essential that a considerable reserve be held—the National Board has the duty of building up a reserve fund so that when our men return the Board's funds will be a reservoir from which provincial funds may be augmented.
