4. RESOLUTION CONCERNING INCREASED PRODUCTION

Whereas most Asian countries are suffering from acute shortages of production, which not only reduce employment opportunities, but result in a serious deterioration in the standards of living of the people;

Whereas effective steps should be taken immediately to create conditions favourable to the promotion and maintenance of production at the highest possible level;

This Conference recommends the Governing Body to call the attention of the Governments of the Asian States represented at this Conference to the following:—

(a) The urgent necessity for increasing production;

(b) The need for increasing productive efficiency to the maximum extent;

(c) The need for establishing, in consultation with organizations of employers and workers, suitable consultative negotiating or statutory bodies for the speedy and equitable resolution of differences between labour and management; and

(d) The need to secure the fullest co-operation of employers and workers in eliminating conditions of insecurity and dissatisfaction which affect production, and in discouraging conditions which lead to the stoppage or slowing down of production for any reason whatsoever.
