Police Instruction Classes.

The formation in August last year of weekly police instruction classes in the four centres has thus far proved satisfactory, and must have beneficial results in raising the standard of education and efficiency amongst the men.

The second annual examination, which consisted of a selection of subjects from the Police Acts, Police Regulations, and police duties generally, was held in January last.

Twenty-eight members offered themselves for examination: 14 passed and 14 failed. On the whole, the examinations showed that the members examined possessed a considerable knowledge of the subjects referred to.

First Aid to the Injured.

During the year ended March, 1908, 69 probationers presented themselves, at the conclusion of their course of training at the depot, for examination in "first aid to the injured," the examinations being held under the auspices of the St. John Ambulance Association.

Of the 69 men who sat, 68 passed and 1 failed.

The highest number of marks gained was 93, the average of those who passed being 77.2. (Maximum, 100; bare pass, 50.)

The lecturer was in each case Dr. Henry, Police Surgeon, and the examiners different medical men appointed by the Association.

The New Zealand Police Force.

The following return shows the growth of the Department, the continued increase of the population, and the total number of offences (irrespective of by-law offences) reported, and in which arrests or summonses resulted, each year since 1877, prior to which date each province in the colony had its own Police Force, and reliable data are not available.

In addition to the strength of the Force as shown above, there are 20 district constables, 9 native constables, 4 police surgeons (one in each city), 4 matrons (one in each city), and 48 troop horses.

It will be observed that during the year under review the Police Force of the Dominion has been augmented to the extent of 35 men, that at present there are more police to population than there has been since 1888, and that during the last five years the strength of the Force has been increased by 121 members.
