It will be noted that no less than £4,497 of these charges was paid to the Postal Department, £3,990 as a contribution to pay pensions, and £507 for postages. By deducting this sum from the total, it will be found that the actual cost of administration in salaries, travelling-expenses, and incidentals is reduced to £4,601, being only 1.3 per cent. of the total paid away in pensions during the year.

The travelling-expenses have, as in former years, been kept at a low figure, the expenditure under this head, embracing the expenses of the Commissioner, Magistrates, Registrars, and the police, being only £157.
