Notes.—In the case of buildings it must be distinctly stated whether the expenditure is required in connection with a new building, addition, or repair and renewal. In the case of railways the name of the section must be given, or, if not, the name of the line must be given. In the case of other works the nature of the work must be given. The rate and item number, as well as the date of the expenditure, must be given.		expended on the works F. P. Manson for Accountant.

Illustrating the new method by which the original form of requisition, by a slight alteration in the forms, is made to answer the double purpose of a requisition and authority form. As several thousands of these authorities are annually issued, it will be seen that this simple method has effected a considerable saving in work.
