

"A major contribution to the protection of our natural heritage"

Revegetation Manual

Using New Zealand Native Plants

A practical guide to the use of New Zealand native plants in the rehabilitation and the establishment of areas of native forest.

The "Revegetation Manual" will be welcomed by a wide range of readers; farmers, home gardeners, landscape architects, rangers, local bodies and schools.

Part One — Principles and Planning, covers background factors such as forest development, protection against fire and browsing animals, and the source of planting material. It also covers site selection and preparation, establishing a nurse crop, the choice of plants and plant propagation and planting. The section on management discusses mulching, fertiliser, and releasing.

Part Two — Revegetation on Specific Sites, covers planting in shrubland and grassland and the use of specific native and exotic plants as nurse crops.

104 pages, handy pocket size (210mm deep x 135mm wide), extensively illustrated with B/W photos and line drawings, durable, waterproof plastic cover. Price $9.95.
