

A school of trevally, a major inshore commercial species in the Bay of Plenty and around Northland. The species is thought to live well in excess of 40 years although little research is being done on it at present. Stocks were overfished in the mid-1970s.