

*If anything is worth saving,
surely the Kiwi is.*

- The Kiwi is threatened.
- The Kiwi Recovery Programme will help its chances of survival.
- Your $2 donation supports the Kiwi Recovery programme and gives you a Kiwi pictorial cheque book.

Kiwi pictorial cheques give a new twist to the term cheque book ecology. It's your chance to join with the Bank of New Zealand to help save the Kiwi. By ordering pictorial cheques, a $2 donation will be automatically deducted from your cheque account for each book and passed directly on to the Kiwi Recovery team.

The Kiwi is threatened

The Kiwi is superbly adapted to its natural environment. In that sense, it can survive and flourish on its own account. What's putting it on the wrong side of the survival balance sheet are introduced threats such as dogs, stoats, possums, wild cats and pigs.

Humans, primarily through destroying forests and introducing these predators, pose the single greatest threat to the Kiwi.

The Department of Conservation now considers all varieties of Kiwi as either Threatened or Endangered – that means that they could become extinct in our lifetime. Stop. Imagine that ...
