

Okarito Brown Kiwi were identified as a distinct variety early in 1993. That was thanks to blood sampling and DNA testing supported by the Kiwi Recovery Programme. They too, however, face extinction if things don't change.

Go into this special draw when you apply.

Two members will be able to choose from :

- One of six beautifully framed, limited edition Kiwi prints each measuring 52 cm x 76 cm and individually signed and numbered by 1992 Wildlife Artist of The Year, Pauline Morse.

or

- A rare opportunity for a group of four to travel with the Department of Conservation to a Bird Sanctuary of your choice, such as Tiritiri Matangi Island in the Hauraki Gulf.

Travel costs and 2 nights accommodation are also included.
