Quilter

8.40 Dora Labbette (soprano), "Rose Softly Blooming"

Sopr

"When Daisies Pied and Violets Blue"

Shakespeare and Arne

8.48 The Charles Brill Orchestra, "Soirees Musicales"

Rossini-Britten

Benjamin Britten has already established himself as one of the most gifted composers of the younger British school and he writes with genuine inspiration. His "Soirees Musicales" is his first essay in "arranging." He has taken certain Rossini pieces and orchestrated them in the form of a Suite. Many of the tunes are familiar, and he has decorated them very charmingly in the idiom of the composer and his period.

9. 0 Weather report and station notices

9. 5 Recordings:

Dohnanyi (pianist) and the London Symphony Orchestra,

"Variations on a Nursery Tune" ..... Dohnanyi

The contemporary Hungarian composer, conductor and pianist, Ernst von Dohnanyi, is neither a nationalist nor a modernist in the special sense of the terms. Rather is he a follower of the German classical school of Brahms, whose influence is plainly discernible in his early chamber music. All his music is given real vitality by its notable qualities of lyricism, strength and humour. Listeners will detect the last quality especially in the present Variations. The song which he has chosen as the basis of his Variations is a little old French tune, "Ah, Vous Dral-je, Maman," strongly reminiscent of "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star."

9.31 Mark Raphael (baritone), "It Was a Lover and His Lass" ..... Quilter
"Come Away, Death" Quilter

9.37 The London Symphony Orchestra, "Music from 'Things to Come'" ..... Bliss

DINNER SESSION

2. 0 "The Brandenburg Concertos of Johann Sebastian Bach," "No. 3 IN G MAJOR," played by the Ecole Normale Chamber Orchestra, Paris, conducted by Alfred Cortot.

The career of Alfred Cortot, pianist, conductor, lecturer and musical editor, has been a brilliant one. He is of course, chiefly known as a solo pianist, and he began playing in public as long ago as 1897. Cortot's lecture-recitals draw crowded audiences and he has achieved success as an orchestral conductor. He still conducts, and is Principal of the famous Ecole Normale of Paris, which he founded.

8.30 MUSIC FROM THE THEATRE

"La Traviata." Verdi's famous opera. Founded on Alexandre Dumas' play "La Dame aux Camelias," known in English as "Camille"

Violetta, a courtesan of Paris, is madly loved by Alfredo, a young man from Provence. He persuades her to give up her life in Paris, and retire with him to a country cottage. Here life is full of happiness for them both. But Alfredo's father seeks Violetta, secretly, and tells her that his son's life is being ruined because of this liaison. The generous Violetta decides to sacrifice herself for her lover's sake. Fearing to say good-bye and explain, she leaves the cottage and returns to Paris. She is threatened with consumption and, in order to forget the genuine love she has tasted for so brief a spell, throws herself into the old life of gaiety. Alfredo not knowing the real reason for her desertion, follows her to Paris, and, seeing her at a ball, surrounded by a court of admirers, publicly insults her. Too late, he discovers the unselfish love which has led her to throw away her happiness with him. He finds her dying and a tender reconciliation takes place.
