He is a courageous man who with serious intentions enters nowadays on ballad writ-one fears that few, if any, new flowers will ever be found to blossom. Yet Frederick Keel entered the field, and his offerings, though few in number, have many admirers, especially among professional vocalists. A teacher of singing himself he was attracted by the Folk-Song, and was once Hon. Secretary of the Folk-Song Society, editing the Journals of the Society for a time.

 Readings from the poems of Robert Browning

The fact that in the same week there are to be readings from Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett Browning is a reminder of the most famous marriage of genius.
 Robert Browning's poems should be a good tonic these days. He was a man as well as a great poet.
