

*I'm glad
my son
joined
the A.T.C.*

My son has taken his place beside his friends in the A.T.C. He is a happy lad because the A.T.C. has given him an incentive and a goal for his ambitions. It makes me happy, too, to know that he is beside his friends with a chance to build a fine career for himself in the air age that is ahead of his generation.

He has an interest that occupies all his spare time. And that is not all. The discipline has been good for him. He is smarter in appearance and the training is building him up in manliness and outlook. Then again he is at that age when good companionship is most important. He has found that in the A.T.C. For these reasons I'm glad he joined, I'm no longer worried about my boy.
