

RESPONSIBILITY—

When you are trained for it!

Training opens many doors to a registered Nurse . . . she can rise to positions of valuable and satisfying responsibility and financial independence. For instance, the position of Ward Sister is one which offers wide scope to a nurse who is keenly aware of the value and the possibilities of her work.

A Ward Sister is the most important person for both the care of the patients and the training of nurses under her. She has great responsibility—but also many privileges; although she may live in the Nurses' Home, she may also be permitted to live away from the hospital.

As a vitally important link between Doctor and patient, she occupies a position in hospital administration which is of the utmost value and interest.

Begin your training now for this satisfying and worthwhile position of service.

BLACKBERRIES

B LACKBERRIES seem to be very plentiful this year—at least in the Southern districts—so here are some suggestions for making use of them.

Blackberry Sponge

Pick over your good, ripe, dry blackberries, put them in a pie dish or casserole and cover with sugar. Put on lid, and bake in a slow oven till the berries are tender and some juice is formed. If they are extra dry, you may put just a sprinkling of water. Prepare a custard with 2 egg yolks, and a pint of milk. Thicken the milk with 2 good dessertspoons of cornflour and when cooling add it to the beaten yolks. Sweeten to taste and pour it over the berries, which should have been allowed to cool. Bake until the custard is nicely set. Then pile on top a meringue made with the 2 beaten egg-whites and 2 tablespoons of sugar, and return the dish to the oven for a few minutes to brown off.

Blackberry Pie

This is an American "Two Crust" pie. The top may be either an ordinary crust or a "lattice work" made with half-inch strips of pastry criss-crossed over the fruit. Some or all of the strips may be twisted; or they may be all left plain. Imagination may have free rein. Line a pie plate with pastry. Fill with blackberries. Mix together 2 tablespoons of flour, about a cup of sugar, ¼ teaspoon each of nutmeg and cinnamon,

Aunt Daisy Leaves Soon for U.S.A.

WHEN Aunt Daisy made her goodwill visit to America in 1944 (the photograph above was taken then), she was asked to undertake a lecture tour covering a representative cross-section of the United States, in order to tell the "ordinary people" more fully about our way of life in New Zealand. At that time, however, it was not possible for Aunt Daisy to extend her leave. But now the problem of civilian travel in the States is easing a little, and Barbara is back from war service overseas and ready to deputise for her mother as she has done on past occasions. So Aunt Daisy will shortly make another trip to the U.S.A. She is planning to be absent for approximately six months. Arrangements are being made for her to lecture at women's clubs and organisations right through the States, as well as at some high schools and colleges; and to observe the variations in the "way of life" in different parts of America. She is taking with her some representative films and pictures of New Zealand with which to illustrate her talks; and she plans to complete her work by telling New Zealanders, on her return, about the lives of women in the States as she has seen them—their housekeeping, their way of employing leisure, and so on. Aunt Daisy will work mainly through the Association of Women Directors of the National Association of Broadcasters, of which she was made the first international member. This will give her unique opportunities of making close contact with women in all parts of America; and it is certain that among her most interested listeners will be New Zealand war-brides now in the States, many of whom will have been familiar with Aunt Daisy's cheerful "Good Morning, Everybody" almost since they were children.

Barbara, who will deputise for Aunt Daisy, is seen above at the microphone of the FBS in Cairo. She entered the Air Force as a V.A.D. on March 22, 1943, was subsequently transferred to the Army, and went overseas in December, 1943, on the hospital ship Oranje, on which she served until the end of May, 1945, when she was sent to No. 5 General Hospital, Helwan, to recuperate after pneumonia. She remained at Helwan on duty until her return to New Zealand by the Dominion Monarch on January 23, this year. Barbara was one of the New Zealanders representing the Medical Division at the El Alamein Memorial Service on November 9, 1943.
