

Labour certainly gave us ex-servicemen a Square Deal!

"WE World War II. servicemen and women have certainly been given a square deal by Labour. Take pensions. Liberal to begin with, they've been increased on a pretty generous scale. We've been "settled" on the land under Labour's legislation that protects us from paying uneconomic prices. And we've benefited liberally from trade training, education assistance and generous help on housing. We're fortunate, too, that we came back to prosperous times that have stayed prosperous. Jobs are plentiful and wages good. We've got opportunity, prosperity, security—the very things we fought for. That's the best kind of rehabilitation any man could wish for—and we've got Labour to thank for that."
