"I should be the last person to agree that there is no room for improvement in either syncopated music or the way it is played; yet it is because I believe that there are great possibilities about syncopated music that I wrote 'The Three Bears,'" said Eric Coates six years ago. He continued: "Up to that time I had been sceptical of jazz, but the work received such an enthusiastic welcome from listeners, and I liked it so much in its new form, that I composed 'The Three Bears' expressly for the purpose of being played by a syncopated band."

MANY FEWER LICENCES

A reduction of nearly 19,000 in the number of radio licences at present in force in New Zealand is shown in the Postmaster-General's return for the month ended April 20, 1940. This table shows the position, with comparisons:

As at	1939	1938
September 30	334,541	207,586
October 31	311,927	291,073
November 30	333,250	308,842
December 31	338,249	315,086
1940	1939
February 29	336,618	313,832
March 31	346,838	319,879
April 30	328,172	290,002

It will be noticed that a similar reduction took place over the same period last year

This year's return for April shows that there were 326,108 receivers: Auckland, 105,668; Canterbury, 61,013; Otago, 44,147; Wellington, 115,280. The dealers' total was 903, an increase from the 846 for the same period last year, but a decrease from the 1,128 licensed in March this year.
