 Music from "Crown of India" Suite Elgar
- In 1912, when King George V. paid a visit to India, there was staged at the Coliseum in London a masque entitled "The Crown of India," in popular commemoration of the event. The masque made an impressive pageant, and a marked feature of the production was the music written by Elgar to accompany the masque. From this music a "Suite for Orchestra" has since been arranged and has proved one of the most popular of Elgar's ceremonial pieces.
