Featuring the popular English actor and screen star, Michael Redgrave, in the part of Captain Macheath.

The scene is London, in the year 1728. Mr. Peachum, although outwardly a representative of law and order, is really a "fence," and as long as thieves supply him with sufficient stolen goods they stand a chance of escaping with their lives. He and his wife are greatly disturbed regarding the possible marriage of their daughter Polly and one Captain Macheath, a gallant highwayman. Mrs. Peachum finds out from her husband's assistant, Fitch, that the couple are already married. The Peachums decide that Captain Macheath must hang, and, despite Polly's pleas, make arrangements for his betrayal. The philandering highwayman is captured and put in Newgate gaol, but the head gaele's daughter, Lucy, is also in love with him and assists him to escape. Through his fondness for women he is once again captured by Peachum, and returned to Newgate. He is committed to trial in the old Bailey, and sentenced to death, but at the last moment a reprieve arrives and he is freed.
