The Maori War Canoes

OFTEN built up to a length of 80 feet, accommodating as many as 100 warriors and wonderfully carved and decorated, the Maori War Canoes were once a familiar sight on New Zealand's rivers. The finest specimen in existence of an old-time Maori war canoe is the one known as "Te-Toke-a-Tapiri" (Tapiri's Axe), now in the Auckland War Memorial Museum.

Although no longer used for war-like purposes, the canoes are still to be seen on river regattas and thousands have thrilled watching bow-to-bow struggles between rival canoes in races. The Waikato regatta has staged many a splendidly exciting canoe race.
