KEEPER OF THE FLAME

(M-G-M)

THIS is a less eccentric and less revolutionary, and therefore more popular, Citizen Kane, with Spencer Tracy as the journalist who sets out to discover the inside story about what made a certain Great Man great, and with Katharine Hepburn as the G.M.'s mysterious widow. Everything, in fact, is very mysterious, and in case you haven't seen the film already and still have a chance to do so, I won't spoil the excellently-sustained suspense by telling you any more about it, except to say that the story has a great deal more to it than the average melodrama and is a useful warning against the dangers of hero-worship.

THE FOREMAN WENT TO FRANCE

(B-E-F)

CLIFFORD EVANS, one of the stars of Love on the Dole, is the foreman who went to France at the time when the Nazis were sweeping toward the Channel, in order to retrieve some secret aeroplane machines lent to the French Government. Since his main object was to prevent these machines falling into German hands, and since there would surely have been duplicates in Britain, one wonders why he didn't destroy the darn things on the spot, instead of lumping them all the way home—except, of course, that then he wouldn't have had nearly such an exciting journey, with Constance Cummings (for romance), Tommy Trinder (for comedy), and with Nazis and French Fifth Columnists all along the route (for menace). The funny bits rather get in the way of the tragic, and vice versa, but on the whole, it is competent and exciting melodrama.

ROAD TO MOROCCO

(Paramount)

ANOTHER fantastic journey by those good companions Bob Hope and Bing Crosby. As usual, they find Dorothy Lamour and a heap of trouble at the end of it. By dint of Hope's serio-comic fooling, the charms of Lamour and other ladies of the harem, camera tricks and bright direction, and even by dint of Crosby's crooning, a great deal of cheerful nonsense is squeezed from a very small amount of story. It suits my taste, anyway.

IMMORTAL SERGEANT

(20th Century-Fox)

INSPIRED by memories of the girl (Maureen O'Hara), he left behind him, and by the precepts and example of his dead sergeant (Thomas Mitchell), young Henry Fonda leads a lost patrol from the Eighth Army across a Hollywood desert, clears up an oasis-full of Nazis, wins a medal, and gets the girl. C'est magnifique mais ce n'est pas la guerre Lybienne! Neither is it, except very remotely, the best-selling novel that John Brophy wrote.

CHETNIKS

(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD plays Cow-boys-and-Indians in the Balkans, with the incredible General Mikhailovitch (played by Philip Dorn), putting it all across the stupid Nazis. I can't help thinking he may have put it across somebody else, too, for Tito and his Partisans don't get even a single-line credit.

GET IN THE SUN

—build Bone and Teeth
with Vitamin D

Insufficient Vitamin D causes Rickets and other Bone Malformations.

Sunlight is the origin of all the Vitamin D that exists. When sunlight falls directly on the skin it changes a substance already in the skin into Vitamin D.

Although direct exposure is essential, so that the ultra-violet rays play on the skin, you must start sunbathing gradually. Work up from a few minutes exposure at the start of the season. Get a healthy coat of tan, but don't get burnt. When your skin is properly tanned, it will resist sunburn and deleterious rays.

The Vitamin D produced by the sunshine will enable your system to use the calcium and lime in your diet to build strong teeth and sound bones.

So get in the sun. Not only at the beach or on your annual holidays, but at week-ends.

If you can't get your Vitamin D the NATURAL way, you should take one teaspoon of Cod Liver Oil each day, even through the summer.
