Although Eric Coates specialises in light music, he has been described by one critic as "the first English composer to treat modern syncopation seriously," and by another as "the only modern composer who can write a simple, popular melody without being common." Some of these popular pieces may be heard from 3ZB at six o'clock this evening.

Tall, good-looking, quiet spoken. In his forties, and a really masculine type, is the best way I can describe Victor Silvester," says Fred Hartley. He can't write music, he can't read music, and he can't play any musical instrument, yet he knows exactly what he wants from his band and he always gets it. Although Victor Silvester's Orchestra is small, it contains the best available musicians. His violinist was Alfredo Campoli, and saxophone, drums, pianos (two) and string bass make up the rest of the group. This afternoon at 4 o'clock 4ZB will present recordings by Victor Silvester and his hall-room orchestra.

See the New Range of lovely, lovely.
