*Specially recommended by
Fred Streeter, V.M.H.,
Britain's famous Radio
Gardener and Horticulturist.*

Plantoids have proved their remarkable fertilising powers in gardens of all sizes — from suburban window boxes to professional grower's holdings. Simply drop these little plant growth tablets into holes alongside the plants. So clean; so easy; so rewarding.

Plantoids get to the root of things!

Plantoids contain Nitrogen, Potash, Phosphorus, Calcium, Iron, Manganese and Naphthalene. How do they work? This is what happens. As the tablets break up, they release Nitrogen which stimulates growth. The Potash then provides stamina to support this extra growth. The Phosphorus, in due course, helps the development of flower and fruit. Meantime, the Manganese and Iron ensure good colour, the Calcium sweetens the soil and the Naphthalene deters pests.
