The White South

DUNCAN CRAIG, ex-navy corvette commander, runs into strange adventure when, by chance, he takes the same plane to South Africa as Julius Bland, owner-director of the South Antarctic Whaling Company. Bland and his daughter-in-law, Judy, who are on their way to the Antarctic to investigate reports of trouble between Erik Bland, the son of Julius, and Bernt Nordahl, Judy's father, the senior whaling-fleet captain. When the master of the vessel that is to take Bland and Judy south falls ill, Duncan Craig accepts the command—but not before news has come that Bernt Nordahl is dead, supposedly swept overboard in a fierce Antarctic gale. In the "White South" Craig discovers a strange plot that accounts for the death and tragedy that haunts the people in this story. The White South, a serial adapted from the well-known book by Hammond Innes, with Howard Craven as Duncan Craig, and Myrna Dodd as Judy, begins at 9.0 p.m. on Monday, May 28, from the ZBs and 2ZA.
