

PROGRAMME CHANGE

THE broadcast of Dr. Eric Thiman's cantata "The Nativity" from 1YZ will now be heard at 7.30 p.m. on Christmas Day, not at 8.20 p.m. as stated in our last issue. An organ recital by Dr. Thiman, recorded at First Church, Dunedin, will be broadcast by 4YA on Sunday, January 6, at 8.5 p.m.

life into a world where the experts pre-side with Olympian calm over their trays of leavened scones and sun-kissed, not Ethiopian, meringue? My own theory is that only the efficient have time to sit down to these pep-talks on food with the calm necessary to receive lasting benefit from them. The rest of us are too busy pecking the burned bits off our saucepans and wishing we could think of something besides sausages.

Mixture as Before

A TALK from 4YC entitled "The Royal Family," by A. L. Rowse, proved to be an astonishing production in several ways. The speaker, being an historian of some repute, might have been expected to give us something, if not new, at least showing some sign of unusual scholarship. Instead, his talk was the essence of the ordinary—the sort of patriotic journalism that one finds fairly frequently in the pages of a woman's magazine. This was surprising; still more surprising, and disappointing, was the fact that it was chosen for YC listeners who are entitled to expect, I feel, that a talk on such a subject will deal with it with less superficiality.

New Angle

PROFESSOR G. A. F. Knight's talks on the Old Testament provide an interesting variation of the religious broadcast, being expository rather than hortatory, and having, in consequence, a wider appeal. Professor Knight is, to my mind, one of our more attractive broadcasters, always lucid, never dull or superficial, and his understanding of Hebrew thought and the relation of the Old Testament to the Gospels must bring illumination even to the unrepentant layman. This series, with that of Enrica Garnier on the Synoptic Gospels, remains in my mind as the most impressive religious broadcasts of the year, and suggest that this is a form which might be developed with advantage.
