JUSTICES' justice has become a byeword everywhere. At the Resident Magistrate's Court, Dunedin, a few days ago, before two justices, Resident Magistrate's Court, Dunedin, a few daysago, before two justices, a woman who is a notorious character was charged with having decoyed a girl into a house of ill fame, and atterwards sent her to a house at Port Chalmers, the proprietress of which was in gand when she arrived. The evidence was most conclusive, no defence being offered, and yet, to the surprise of those present, the charge was dismissed, with a caution to the accused. The Justices not being able to deal anymanic with the recovery of the charge was the formal of the contraction of the surprise of deal summarily with the woman, were reluctant to commit her for trial!

THE programme of operations of the Emigration agent for Canterbury is thus sketched out :- " Mr Duncan writes to say that he proposes bury is thus sketched out:—" Mr Duncan writes to say that he proposes to make Glasgow his head-quarters for five months; paying flying visits into the rural counties and the North of Ireland, "giving lectures on Canterbury as a field for emigration. The remaining seven months of the year will be devoted to England." Mr. Duncan thus ignores the middle and southern countries of Ireland from which there is a considerable nominated immigration to this colony. Mr Adams will also without doub; take up his quarters in Scotland, and will probabyl get emigrants from no part of Ireland, or at all events only from one part of Ireland. It should be remembered that the warning of "hard part of Ireland. It should be remembered that the warning of "hard times" and "retrenchment" for some mouths to come in America, will have the effect of greatly lessening Irish emigration to the United States. An active agent could by the contrast depict this colonyial the brighter, and cause to flow to New Zealand that current would flow to the United States in the ordinary course of things, but there is little likelihood of this being done in so far as Ireland is concerned.

The 'Cromwell Argus' in a leading article on the Governor's visit up country makes the following remarks:—"The next time Sir James Fergusson travels through Otago, which we hope will be at an early date, we trust he will do one of two things: either travel as the Governor of New Zealand, or as plain Sir James Fergusson. To do the latter, and to escape any demonstrations of any kind, it will only be necessary for him to leave his mounted escort behind in Dunedin, and to give particular injunctions to his Honor the Superintendent to and to give particular injunctions to his more the superintendent, a avoid giving announcements of his movements to Mayors and Councillors. He will not be molested on his journey throughout the province. It is impossible for any man to enjoy the honour and dignity of being The Wakship Mail' also comments in strong terms on the same matter. On the other hand, ht appears from the effusion of some clever children, or rather some raw interary artist who wrote an address for them, that shaking hands with the Governor has given a tone to the elite of Tokomairio.

The total revenue of the Customs' department for last year was £965,800 as compared with £813,270 in 1872. The increases on the quarter were—Dunedin, £26,914; Lyttelton, £15,458; Wellington, £7597; Auckland, £5347]; Nelson, £3536.

THE Good Templars in Dunedin have at length made an open effort to have the Licensing Ordinance of 1862 declared a nullity, and repealed by the Licensing Act of 1873. To test the matter, they, a tew days ago, proceeded egainst a publican who had obtained a transfer under the Ordinance since the Act was in force, and the decision given in the case by the presiding Justices seems to sustain their objection—right they below teefficient that pulses have jection—viz, that no liquor traffic can take place until licenses have been granted under the new Act. It was argued that the Ordinance was intended to be incorporated in the Act, and that therefore the transfer was valid. The Court inflicted a nominal penalty of 1s and costs, counsel for defendant giving notice of appeal.

The criminal proceedings in the Surat case have been concluded, and ex Capt. Johnson has received sentence of two months' imprisonment. Mr Muitland, in passing sentence, said: I can come to no other conclusion than that you have been guilty of what I must characterise as a very serious offence—that of criminal neglect of your duty as master of your ship, at the time which should have called forth from master of your sinp, at the time which should have called forth from any man of common prudence the utmost energy in the direction of taking every possible step to preserve his ship and those who were in it from the immediate and imminent danger which threatened them, and which I need not recapitulate. You showed an entire want of due and which I need not recapitulate. You showed an entire want of due precaution and a disrigard of consequences in not taking proper means to seek and obtain assistance from the passing steamer, which you had it clearly in your power to do—an onusion on your part which might have been attended with very fatal results, and by which you, in my opinion, scriously endangered the lives of those you had on board. The want of due precaution and the recklessness on your part may, I which be true better the first of your height of of the your height of your think, be attributed to the fact of your being at the time in a state of partial intoxication - a state which, in my opinion, under the circumstances, aggravates the offence.
