

incidental cosiness and brightness of it, although not by means of regular warming appliances. It is the gas company's point of view, although the warmth given off by incandescent gas light is only largely for this reason that cold weather is even better than fog for promoting gas consumption from a very small fraction, for the same scale of illumination, of that produced by flat-flame burners. It

Some Modern Gas Fire Places which show a great advance in Design on Older Patterns.