There is no local interference. Both long and short-wave stations on the same Set. A special plug for Gramophone Amplification. A device enabling voice amplification. Portability. As powerful as the 1928 Courier 4.

Price, complete, £27/10/-

All the Australian and New Zealand stations are within easy range if you have the new Courier Electric Screened Grid Radio, Model E.S. And you get a fine clear tone with loudspeaker volume to spare, and a notable absence of interference noises. That is because the materials and workmanship are of the very best—nothing second rate is good enough for the "Courier."

In addition to a first-class radio performance, you can get no end of fun from the special amplification socket. You can put your own voice and the music of your gramophone through the loudspeaker.

No Batteries — No Aerial !

And, of course, with this new Electric Courier you don't have the bother of an aerial or the expense of batteries. You just plug into the light socket, or heating point. The special Courier smoothing circuit supplies the current to the valves at exactly the right power with absolute safety and silence.
