

Radio Round the World

THE speaker-magnets of a load of battery sets being carried by air in England affected the aeroplane compass, and the pilot had to land and restow the cargo.

LISTENERS who are also connoisseurs of recordings may soon become familiar with a new continental orchestra, the French National Radio Orchestra, conducted by M. Inglebrecht; after a special concert by this orchestra, which is part of the new

French national broadcasting scheme, a critic said: "The performance justifies the hope that this orchestra may soon occupy the first place among French musical combinations."

THE Spanish Radio Union has been forbidden to give sporting broadcasts by a law which is said to have been sponsored by the newspapers. Recently the Union proposed to broadcast the results only of the Brazil v. Spain football match, but this was prohibited, and afterwards they were fined about £200 for the "lack of respect with which they announced the suspension of the broadcast of the result of the match."

THE American National Geographic Society and National Broadcasting Company have combined to experiment with a balloon 15 miles up. Major Kepner, pilot, and Captain Stevens, scientist, will broadcast from the balloon over national hook-ups, and by short-wave relays, and new equipment will allow the balloonists to converse with officials on the ground.

AT the Porte de Vilette, the entrance to a new Paris subway, there is a photo-electric cell which gauges the height of every vehicle approaching; if the van or lorry is too high, a very loud-speaker says, "Car too high. Pass to the right."
