

In the Radio EYE

W. O. Fields as Micawber, and Freddie Bartholomew, as the young David Copperfield, in the film version of the famous Dickens novel. A radio version of "David Copperfield" will be broadcast from three of the New Zealand national stations on Sunday evening at nine o'clock. Below is Lionello Cecil, the operatic tenor, whose broadcasting tour of New Zealand continues triumphantly.

General Evangeline Booth (bottom left), head of the Salvation Army, who arrives in New Zealand next week. Her welcomes at Auckland and Wellington will be broadcast. In the centre is Yehudi Menuhin, world-famous boy violinist, who passed through Auckland on Good Friday en route to Australia, where he is to give several concerts. On the right is "Aunt Pat," favourite of the Christchurch childrens' hour, who is back at the microphone after a well-earned holiday.
