

10 YEARS IN ENTERTAINMENT

bear. Many people have reached a stage when they cannot be without noise; this applies especially to the younger generation—the house must always be filled with the wireless or gramophone. Both these evils of noise and speed, are making us deaf to the beauties of nature and of art. The price paid for this advancement of civilisation is a weakness of body and a dullness of perception.

There have been many efforts made to counteract these evils, such as the rage for sun-bathing, or the craze for "hiking" and other outdoor exercises.

All this shows that people are becoming aware of their needs. In the midst of all this, the Revived Greek Dance is one of the strongest forces at work—it has taken its ideals from the days when life was unhurried, and from a people whose vision of beauty produced an art which was the perfect blending of body and soul. The power of Greek drama, the majesty of Greek architecture, and the loveliness of their sculpture and vases, all show the same quality of perfection.

Amazing results have been achieved through this movement—weak bodies have grown strong, bent bodies straight, and a definite development of physical beauty and power. The exercises develop the body equally and rhythmically, and every group of muscles is trained to act easily and to respond at once to the command of the brain. The student of this work learns complete control of her body, which becomes an instrument to use at will—not only are the physical powers developed, but the contemplation of the arts of the ancient world soothe the spirit and help to gain repose.
