A PAGE FOR RADIOBEAMS

'WESTWARD HO!'

SOON every Radiobeam will be privileged to hear that wonderful story of "Westward Ho" on the air. Yes, it's perfectly true. The national stations are actually going to put that thrilling yarn over the air to your very wireless set week by week.

Of course, most of you should know the story. It was the best Charles Kingsley wrote. Briefly it is this: A lively Devon boy, Amyas Leigh, who sailed round the world with Drake, took part in a war against the Spaniards in 1580, and took a Spanish captain, Don Guyman prisoner. When on parole in Devon, Guyman falls in love with Rose Salten and, assisted by Amyas's cousin, Eustace, marries her and takes her off to the Spanish Main.

Amyas sets off in pursuit with Frank (his brother) and Salvation Yeo, but Rose and Frank fall victims of the Inquisition. So for three years the hero and his ship's crew wander about in South America till finally they capture a Spanish galleon and sail back to England. They take with them Ayacanora, who is the daughter of an English explorer, John Oreham, and the Queen of an Indian tribe.

On reaching England Amyas looks to have revenge on Don Guyman. But where is the Spaniard to be found, and what is the best way to tackle him?

HAIR ON END

We know that both in ourselves and in many of the lower animals the hair can, and does, stand on end with fright, almost "like the quills upon the fretful porcupine," as Shakespeare says. It is also true, as he says, that it is possible for "each particular hair to stand on end," for we find that every hair has the power to do this, and that what happens is not that several hairs stand up together as the result of pulling on the skin.

At the root of the hair we find a tiny muscle so arranged that, while the hair usually lies slantwise, when this muscle is set working the hair stands upright.

The best reasons we can give for this peculiarity are that this movement may help to keep the root of the hair in order by a sort of massage, or that it may serve in keeping the skin clean.

WHAT IS WRONG WITH THIS STORY?

A man and his wife once went to church, and whilst the sermon was on, the man went to sleep. He dreamed that he was captured by bandits and they were going to kill him. Just as they were bringing down the knife to cut off his head, his wife, seeing that he was asleep, hit him on the back of the neck to wake him up. The man then fell forward in his seat, dead.

A Good Deed for EACH DAY

SUNDAY.

AS to-day is Sunday, you will be at home a lot of the time, so ask if there is anything special you can do.

MONDAY.

WITHOUT saying a word to anybody, clean daddy's shoes before he dresses for the office. He'll have a lovely surprise!

TUESDAY.

MOST "Radiobeams" know that this is Pet's Day. Take good care of your pets, for you must realise that pets make the best of friends.

WEDNESDAY.

MOST children wash or wipe the dishes for Mummy. Do you?

THURSDAY.

BOYS, what about making up a fire, just nice and ready to be lighted?

FRIDAY.

GIRLS, have you ever dusted the front room? Try it now. It's easy.

SATURDAY.

WELL, Radiobeams, message day again, to-day, don't forget what you should do, will you? And every Radiobeam reader should join the Cocobug League to-day ***

Let's Laugh

WHAT is the smallest room in the world?
A mushroom.

POLICEMAN (to small boy stealing view of football match from top of wall):
"Hey, what's the game?"
Boy: "No score yet!"

STEWARD (to Mary who is trespassing on the upper deck): "You want to look out, the captain is coming up."

Mary (very seasick): "I don't care what comes up now!"

TEACHER: "Give me a definition of drawing, John."

John (after a pause): "Drawing is thinking and then marking round the think."

TEACHER: "Well, Tom, can you tell me, why your brother is not present to-day?"

Tom: "Yes please, teacher, we had a bet which of us could lean farthest out of the bedroom window."

Teacher: "Well?"
Tom: "He won!"
