portraits that will be included in this collection, but I remember "Miss Edith May," a slim, dark girl with lovely hands and a proudly-set head, portraits of Miss Helen Buchanan, a Christchurch girl and member of an old Banks Peninsula family, of Mrs. Henry Crust, who belongs to the well-known Ballin family, and "Margaret Hatherley," that was exhibited last year in Paris.

Both Elizabeth and Cecil Kelly are represented in most of the bigger New Zealand art galleries. Wellington has a fine portrait of Mrs. Geoffrey Myers, daughter-in-law of New Zealand's Chief Justice; Christchurch has landscapes belonging to this talented husband and wife. Mrs. Kelly recently completed a fine portrait of Christchurch's Grand Old Man, Sir Arthur Dudley Dobson, whose death in 1934 left Canterbury sadly poorer.

I seem to have said little of the work of Cecil Kelly, but, in a different sphere, it has the same sure touch and verve as that of his wife's. A very fine canvas, "Lake Wanaka," was hung at the exhibition of the Royal Society of British Artists last year, and this same canvas, together with "Governor's Bay" and "Mount Cook from the Tasman Valley," is to be exhibited in the Birmingham Art Gallery this month. Mr. Kelly is on the staff of the Canterbury College School of Art.

It seems inevitable that New Zealand will eventually lose Cecil and Elizabeth Kelly. (Maybe I'm quite wrong and they have no intention of leaving New Zealand, come what may.) But it seems that in the case of these two artists, who are earning more recognition abroad than all the rest of our New Zealand artists put together, that England and the Continent would be a much easier place to work in than this country of ours. It looks from this that I am trying to speed them from our shores. Heaven forbid!—I think too much of them both. But I do know that their work has reached a standard where it can compare more than favourably with some of the finest work in Europe.

SAVED FROM "LIVING HELL"

"I am writing to tell you how much I owe to R-U-R," writes Mr N. E. Joyce, 9 Matson's road, Papanui. "For over 3 years I suffered a living hell with muscular rheumatism. My left arm was practically paralysed so that I could not dress myself, and I used to get frightful pains at night in the back and shoulders, and at times I couldn't turn my head. I spent well over £30 on so-called remedies, hospitals and doctors before I tried out your R-U-R." R-U-R is sold with a written money-back guarantee certificate in every packet. R-U-R is obtainable from Chemists throughout New Zealand and from Hutchinson Bros., and Invincible Cash and Carry Stores, Auckland.
