EYEGLASSES that enable a person to read a book on the lap while still apparently looking straight ahead are the latest novelty in Germany.

THE human ear, in some instances, can hear sounds ranging from 16 to 40,000 vibrations a second.

At Alexandra Palace a few weeks ago, clock chimes were taken from a gramophone record (Big Ben is now relayed direct). At the close of the evening television transmission the man at control placed the needle in the wrong groove. Viewers were surprised by the yapping of a terrier.
