RADIO SESSION PROHIBITED --- Cont'd From P. 1.

principles of collective security ceived from the German Consul. and the machinery of the Finally, about a fortnight up, he League of Nations, however ago, the session was banned night. sadly the machinery may have from the air. failed.

First intimation of impending trouble came when the sponsor of the session, Mr. Horace Bull, of Auckland, received an anonymous telephone call threatenment that if the session was ing that if the session was not stopped, official protests would be made, and it would be stopped anyhow.

Following this, Mr. Melvin's time on the air was cut down to three nights a week instead of six, and his material was heavily censored and cut.

Following this again, a deputation consisting of four Auckland Labour Members of Parliament, a member of the Auckland University Council, the sponsor, and Mr. Melvin him-self waited on Mr. Savage at Wellington to discuss ways and means of conducting the session in a manner which would satisfy everyone.

To Mr. Savage the deputation proposed that an advisory

STRANGE VETO No Readings From "Mein Kampf"

REMARKABLE official ban imposed recently on Kenneth H. Meivin, who conducted 1ZB's "History Behind the Headlines" session, was a Headlines" session, was a veto that he must not read extracts from Hitler's book, "Mein Kampf," presumable reason being that some of the passages might be provocative. And this, in the face of the almost universal circular the almost universal circula-the almost universal circula-tion of the book in Germany, and of the fact that it is, in effect, the gospel of Nazism. Possibly it was feared Mr. Welvin's extracts would be taken not from the expurgated English translation, which is a very innocuous, milk-and-water affair, but from the unexpurgated edition, which gives a much franker exposi-tion of the blood and hate of Nazism. It is Interesting to Nazism. It is Interesting to Nazism. It is Interesting to note that England's Left Book Club hopes to publish in the near future a cheap edition of the unexpurgated "Mein Kampf"—that is, if there are no protests from German consuls in the meantime.

council, consisting of a university professor, a representative of the Minister of Broadcasting, and the station director of 1ZB, should be given full control over all material for the "History Behind the Headlines" session.

N the event of any persons or interests still taking offence at a broadcast, the sponsor offered to buy time on the air for rebuttal of Mr. Melvin, or presentation of further facts by persons or interests

After all, says he, New Zea- ered, was that the session was unnaturally. Listener interest,

That Mr. Melvin had a large following of listeners was soon apparent from the number of phone calls and letters of protest. It is also understood that several trade unions are interested, and are working for the session to be restored.

Mr. Bull, the sponsor, is also land is strongly pledged, embarrassing the Government, which has taken him over two through Mr. Jordan, to the and that protests had been re-years and cost him a considerable amount of money to build up, has been destroyed over-to ban the session, the first question to be asked is just how much jurisdiction does the think the sponsor recognises consul of a foreign Power have it," said Mr. Scrimgeour. "The considerably aggrieved, and not over the domestic affairs of the policy of allowing a sponsor to tioned.

censorship is, moreover, a disquieting omen. What will be the next step? Are we to be allowed access only to the orthodox and official sources of

But, quite apart from personal disappointment to Mr. NCBS, Mr. C. G. Scrim-Melvin, his sponsor and 1ZB geour, has given considerable listeners, the whole incident thought to Mr. Melvin's session was evident from the prompt-THAT the Controller of the If, as it would appear, proness with which he was able to tests by the German Consul give the "Record" the official have prompted the Government reason for the ban.

"The Prime Minister's position is perfectly sound, and I country in which he is sta- comment, through his session, on international affairs, is con-Such rigorous Government sidered extremely unwise, ensorship is, moreover, a dis-especially at a time of interunwise. national unrest.

> "The incident has brought to light a rather remarkable situation. Had the programme been broadcast from any but a Government-owned station, the position would not have been regarded as serious. But those inter-ested can hardly be expected to draw the distinction between an utterance by a Government-owned station and an utterance made in a sponsored programme broadcast from a Governmentowned station."

"Mozart," was the reply.
"Fire him!" said Goldwyn. Get someone more jazzy." 35

"The jamboree had been most successful and the boys had thoroughly enjoyed themselves. During the whole trip there had not been a single breach of conduct .-- News item.

Business men in the main about their work with a hunted look in their eyes when the newspapers reported that the Boy Scouts had returned from the Sydney jamboree, none of them knowing when one of the boys would do them a bad turn.

Cub Hyphen-Smythe, of the Wolves Patrol, endorsing the news report of good conduct, said that, except for a few snakes put in the beds of the less popuar boys so that the others could had been devoid of incident.

Most of the scoutmasters sovereigns now.

Most of the scoutmasters sovereigns now.

Changed into longs on arriving at Wellington, the knickers being little protection in the capital, said one chap, and he'd big boys, you lay off that rough- a dramatic flight and see the like to know how a Highland house stuff, but the British man, do get a move on Adolf, regiment was going to get on Cabinet said we haven't had a this frightful Navy's got some decent cricic everythed a legal is seen 18 inch app. So to the wasn't binding any more was it, or wasn't binding any more was it, or was it?

Oh, dcar, said Mussolini, the big boys, you lay off that rough- a dramatic flight and see the man, do get a move on Adolf, regiment was going to get on Cabinet said we haven't had a this frightful Navy's got some decent cricic everythed a legal is seen 18 in the property to the protection of the protection in the capital said one chap, and he'd big boys, you lay off that rough- a dramatic flight and see the like to know how a Highland house stuff, but the British man, do get a move on Adolf, regiment was going to get on the protection in the capital said one chap, and he'd big boys, you lay off that rough- a dramatic flight and see the like to know how a Highland house stuff, but the British man, do get a move on Adolf, and the protection in the protection in the capital said was it is a protection in the protection in the capital said and the protection in the capital said and the protection in the protection in the capital said and the protection in the protection

But one thing he would like Mr. Savage was able to give to say, and that was the peculiar Dutch people said was that so, C.'s Highland cottage and to say, and both suggestions were turned down.

Reason for Government displeasure, the deputation gaththe hairs on Scoutmaster Blen- a crisis. kinsop's legs.

This Week's Fairytale

in Spain, Italy will stiffen in its demands from France. A Well, after everybody else had been having crises, it seemcities last week went scurrying ed a bit mean that Germany and Italy and Japan should have all the fun and the British people not having a look in, so one day a clever young chap at the Foreign Office went to his chief and said, Look here I've got an idea why shouldn't we have a crisis, see what I mean.

Trouble Here

So they gave him a month's notice (nobody being allowed to have ideas in the Service) and sent the idea on to Cabinet. Well, Cabinet had a good talk about it and decided to send a notice to Holland saying you Dutch people are a bit offside, we may remind you that our late and well-beloved sovereigns William and Mary came from Holland to Britain some decades ago, and they forgot to bring you with them, but this being obviously an oversight we do do them a good turn by mak- think you really belong to us. ing an incision and sucking out After all, if you belonged to our the poison afterwards, the trip sovereigns in those days you sovereigns now.

having them, you're for it. The out, so away Adolf flew to Mr.

Producer Sam Goldwyn frame of the uncompleted people of the Empire must And Adolf flew home and was when the incidental music to a Exhibition Tower and not, as tighten their belts, not gins, but hailed as the Peace-Maker by his certain film did not please him. "Mozart," was the reply.

"Mozart," was the reply.

"Mozart," was the reply.

"Mozart," asked wind through the wires of the and serious meeting said the Peace-maker

And Adolf flew home and was tighten their belts, not gins, but hailed as the Peace-Maker by his people, and Mr. C. said to the the sound of the wind through eat tulips anyhow, we must have Dutch, it's O.K. boys, we're

Cut It Out

Well, Germany by this time "When Franco has conquered was very anxious about Britain taking Holland and being on her frontier and Herr Hitler crisis may be expected in sent off a Note saying, Is this April."—Cable item. your vaunted cricket. you cads. your vaunted cricket, you cads, demobilise, can't you, but the British Cabinet said the Navy had got steam up and the Air Force is just spoiling for a crack at something, they've got some bombs they want to try out, we're invading on April 1, if this is convenient for you.

I do call this a bit thick, said Signor Mussolini, I'd pencilled in that date. You'd better see if you can do anything with Mr. C. Adolf. Fly over or something, get a move on, I think he's going nuts.

For all the newspapers now said Mr. C. was sitting in his cottage in the Highlands surrounded by tanks of his fav-ourite trout and listening to the sound of the bagpipes because he wasn't fond of music.

What About It?

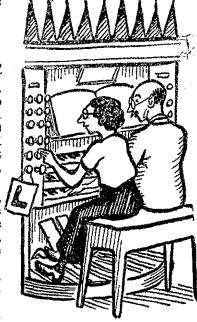

So Adolf wired to Mr. C., what about the neutrality treaty with the Netherlands, and Mr. C. wired back saying he was so sorry but his secretary had been going through some old papers in his desk the day before and ought still to belong to our had carelessly torn it up, so it decent crisis, everybody else is new 18-inch guns it wants to try going to take you by a Commission instead, and the British people said, Hooray, gins, not guns is our motto now, and signor Mussolini said he would have to postpone his crisis, there'd been too many flesh-andblood shows lately and they didn't draw the crowds they used to.

And ten years later, after all the German professors had been doing historical research on this crisis, one of them with a keener sense of humour than the others suddenly began to laugh like anything and said, don't you see, April 1 is April Fools' Day in Britain, it was all a big have.

Well, nobody wanted this blot on the escutcheon of the Peace-Maker passed down in history, so they liquidated the professor, and everybody but the academician lived happily ever after-

-"Bystander." "I should change up now, Miss Murphy."