contains full instructions how to build the "Big Ben Four"—a 5-valve all-wave receiver that is simple to construct, and gives freedom from background noise.

Also fully described is the "1933 Night Hawk"—a two-valve battery all-wave set, using 4 coils designed to bring in all short-wave stations of importance, as well as many stations on the broadcast band.

These construction articles are in addition to the usual wealth of technical and DX information that is packed into 56 pages.
