FOLLOWING upon the lead given in other European countries, Hungary has now fitted its railways with radio equipment for the reception of broadcast programmes for travellers.

AS a fitting end to the Cologne broadcasts through Langenberg high-power station, the studio has adopted an old folk song played on a bugle. It is the Old Nightwatchman's Call, of which a translation from the German is given hereunder: Listen O people, let me tell you, the clock has struck midnight. Watch your fires and the lights so that no harm may befall the city. Praise the Lord!
