

we've had round for tea.

Whatever is sent to try you, you'll need your wits about you. That's no toy you're flying. It's several million dollars of precise machinery.

Teamwork makes us work.

Behind every helicopter crew are a host of supporters. The backroom boys and girls. Without whom we'd never get off the ground.

They range from the engineers who make sure the machine you are flying stays in the air, to the avionics experts who look after your navigation equipment, so you won't get lost.

There are secretaries and supply officers and many more besides. All of them working to make every operation run like clockwork.

And when lives are involved you'll appreciate there's not much room for error.

Especially when you're fishing someone out of the drink.
