

The image is a black and white promotional poster for the AC/DC album 'Ballbreaker'. At the top, the band's name 'AC/DC' is written in their signature stylized, metallic font. Below it, a central figure of a man with long, shaggy hair is shown from the waist up, playing a double-neck electric guitar. He is positioned as if he is about to smash through a large, dark, curved barrier at the bottom of the frame. A massive, bright explosion of light and smoke erupts from the point of impact. The background is a dark, industrial-looking space with tall, ornate pillars and a series of light rays radiating from behind the central figure. At the very bottom, the album title 'BALLBREAKER' is written in large, blocky, three-dimensional letters that appear to be part of the barrier being smashed through. Below the title, the words 'Out Now!' are printed in a clean, sans-serif font. In the bottom right corner, the EMI logo is visible.
