Te Ngaki tribal programme

Young Maori men and women who are interested in a career in tribal and community development should take note of a degree programme offered by the Waikato University.

Te Ngaki is a programme which seeks to train people to work with land trusts, incorporations and marae enterprises rather than pursuing an individual business career.

Next year Te Ngaki offers 12 people the chance to train in the management of tribal programmes. Emphasis is placed on three areas:

1. Students work for the 3 year Bachelor of Social Sciences Degree or the Bachelor of Management Studies Degree at Waikato University. Some study of the Maori language is required as part of the degree. A coordinator assists with degree planning and study.

2. Students live together at Whakamarama, a hostel provided by the Department of Maori Affairs for university students. Each year's intake works with a designated Maori community.

3. Work experience with industry and commerce is organised where appropriate over the long vacations and directly relates to the study programme.

Basic requirements for Te Ngaki are a pass in U.E. or U.E. Bursary preferably with maths at 6th forms level; a commitment to Maori tribal development objectives; a willingness to pursue a degree in Maori studies and either computer science or business management or social administration.

A contact point for those interested is Mr Stafford Smith, the Liaison Officer, University of Waikato, Private Bag, Hamilton or your nearest community officer of the Department of Maori Affairs.

Te Ngaki students, Bella Graham, Steve Le Mon and Sharon Waaka.
