

YOU'VE GOTTA BE GOOD (cont from page 6.)

She is pretty in a vacant sort of way, but has an AI. figure like the blonde down the street back home that you used to watch and undress with your eyes when the wife wasn't looking.

ELIZA : Why Flossie ! What ever are you doing down here ?

FLOSSIE: I'm on vacation. The Lootenant said I could have a couple days off.

ELIZA : The Lootenant ? What Lootenant? Dont you work for the Farmers any more ?

FLOSSIE: (Scornfully) The Farmers ! I got a real job now. My boy friend got me a job with the Yanks. Lovely place it is too. A big sort of pink building down by the harbour.

ELIZA : Your boy friend. I didn't know you had a boy friend.

Flossie: Yes. He's a thrill too. He's a marine.

DAD : Is he one of the fellers what always has everything in hand?

ELIZA : Shut up Dad. (To Floss) Is he going to marry you ?

FLOSSIE: (Regretfully) Everything's on a lease-lend basis at present.
(She changes the subject hurriedly) What's Deeds doing here ?

DEEDS : I've come for the mortgage money and as your dear parents cant pay up, you'll have to get out in the morning.

FLOSSIE: How much is it ?

Dad :

Eliza : Five hundred.

Deeds :

FLOSSIE: Well if that's all (She lifts up her skirt and extracts a roll from the leg of her knickers. No brother, she isn't wearing scanties. It's still chilly down in little old N.Z.)

DAD : Five hundred ! Where did you get five hundred ?

ELIZA : (Brokenly) Oh Flossie! I hope you've been good ^a girl.

FLOSSIE: Let me tell you that to earn five hundred in the city you've got to be damn good.
