

WAAC QUICKS.QUIZ:-

- (1) Who was the officer from D Block who walked into the mess the other day with a Waac badge on his hat?
- (2) Who was the Sgt. who went into Papakura to farewell the troops and remarked to an attendant Waac? "Scram! There's my wife?"
- (3) Why does Pte. Audrey Taylor dislike Americans?
- (4) Who is the Waac who has discovered a new place in which to do her laundry? And where is the place?

We wish Ptes. Joyce Allsopp and Elva Mita the best of luck in the big overseas adventure - and give our love to the boys.

A certain Waac (Address, Hut 5) seen in the company of a Sgt on the train the other night, seemed to be attracting a good deal of unwelcome attention from two other Waacs seated further back. Guess who?

Pte. June Nissen's birth day cake was received very hopefully in Hut 2 and the N.T. Workshops on that great day, April 4th. Said hopes were fully realised. Many happy's, June.

BUSY MISSES

Once upon a time, tatting was frowned upon as an old fashioned accomplishment, but it's amazing the number of modern Waacs who ply a skilful shuttle, not to mention the nimble needles (both knitting and embroidery) that flash about the Waacery. There's some wonderful domestic talent going to waste in the camp.

Seen at "The Mortal Storm" in Papakura one night recently, Cpl. Molly Elliott more than adequately conveyed by two dashing officers. Greedy!

ENGAGEMENT.

Our very good wishes also to Pte. Joan Gibson and Bandsman Bob Crawford on their engagement.

Ask Pte. George Vercoe (ME. Furlough Draft) what his pals meant when they yelled, "Here's a Waac wants you to buy her a pair of pyjamas."

Most of the Waacs returned from Easter leave in a state bordering on financial embarrassment, all but Ptes. Dot Glover and May Clark, for whom the bonies came home with a will.
